That Was His Purpose When
Nabbed in the Street by

Supt. Byrnes had a demand made upon him this afternoon by another crank, who wanted $100,000, which he asserted had been given to him for safe keeping several years ago. The man had never been seen around the place before, but he was known through his letter-writing mania, as similar demands had been received by the Superintendent nearly a year ago.

The man, who was poorly clad, and gave every evidence of having passed several nights in cheap lodging-houses, made his appearance at the Mulberry street building noon after 1 P. M. Detective McGinnis, who was at the desk in the outer office, the man said he had important business with the Superintendent, to whom alone he could communicate. There was nothing in his appearance to indicate that he was a crank, so after a little more questioning he was allowed to enter.

"I want $100,000," he said on seeing the superintendent, "some time ago I directed Miss Bell, a friend of mine, to hand you $50,000, picked you out 100 men as being the very best to keep that money for me. The amount has been grown to $100,000, and I must have it at once. I want $25,000 in it in pennies."

The Superintendent promised to honor the demand, and called in a detective, who led the man to the "executive chamber." There he said his name was Thomas Reilly, a printer, forty-five years old. He was asked to give his address or tell anything more about himself.

Reilly had no weapon of any kind, but when asked where he had been, he said he had been in the city for several years, and had forgotten to mail his card to the Superintendent.

LIFE TOO HARD FOR HIM.

Joseph Arnoux Shot Himself in Central Park.

He Expected Better Luck in the Next World.

The body of a man, identified by letters in his pocket as Joseph Arnoux, of 36 Clinton street, was found by Park policeman Armstrong in Central Park, at Sixty-fifth street, south of the Transverse road, at 6:30 o'clock this morning.

There was a bullet hole in each temple, clutched in the dead man's hand was a .38-calibre revolver, two of the cartridges of which had been fired.

The man was dressed as a successful clerk, and appeared to be about twenty-eight years old.

His watch-chain was a strikingly conspicuous one, and showed that his taste for jewelry had not been gratified by wealth. He had no money.

An envelope, crushed and torn, bore the address, Mr. Confield, 100 West Thirty-sixth street, New York City.

In it was this letter:

"I am myself because life is too hard for me. I have too much trouble. I am sorry, but I must go. I go to the other land where I expect to have better luck. Your friend,
"JOSEPH ARNOUX."

Another letter, dated July, was to the hospital. It was found after the death. It was written in French, and urged him to keep up courage. An inclosure was Arnoux's father. It was a letter of similar tenor as that from his mother. The Marcelline address given by them was Rue de la Madeleine, 34.

The body of Arnoux was taken to the Morgue.

At 36 Clinton street it was learned that Arnoux had occupied a furnished room there. The landlady, Mrs. H. E. Letts, who says that the man came there about two weeks ago. He said his name was Joseph Arnoux. He had a week's rent in advance for a furnished room on the top floor. He brought with him a trunk and several packages.

Last Friday Mrs. Letts asked him for next week's rent in advance, which he promised to pay Saturday. He left the house and did not return.

LOSSES TURNED HIS BRAIN.

Crank Bradley, Who Shot Mathes,
Has Had Hard Luck.

Frederick Lewis Mathes, victim of the shooting in the new Postal Telegraph building was told in "The Evening World's" 6 O'clock Extra yesterday, was reported to be doing well at Chambers Street Hospital this morning.

The operation of laparotomy was performed last evening by Dr. Stimpson at the hospital. It was found that the bullet calibre revolver bullet fired by Bradley had entered the abdomen, but had not penetrated the intestines.

Policeman Franklin Cornell, of the Church street squad, visited the hospital this morning, and was given a certificate stating that Mathes had passed a quiet night, sleeping gently and refreshingly, and that unless peritonitis set in he would eventually recover.

The certificate signed by House-Surgeon Bernadine, of Chambers Street Hospital, stated that it would be impossible to determine the outcome of the bullet wound in Mr. Mathes's abdomen inside of a week, but all present indications were that he would recover.

Bradley, who was taken to Bellevue Hospital, was not brought down to Police Court in the early morning hours. He will be held to await the result of the wounds he inflicted on Supt. Mathes.

Mr. Mathes's wife and daughter were notified last night. They came over from their home, at 48 South Second street, and remained in the hospital.

Bradley shot Frederick Lewis Mathes, superintendent of construction at the United States Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, Broadway and Murray street, at a little before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Broadway was filled with throngs of people.

Bradley was crouching in a corner behind a triangular wall of building. Mathes, who had ordered him to stop, was shot in the chest and abdomen, and he threatened to kill him.

Then it was that Bradley drew a .44-calibre revolver and fired a bullet into Mathes's abdomen.

Mathes was taken to the hospital, and the bullet was found to have entered the abdomen, but had not penetrated the intestines.

MRS. COOK SOUGHT DEATH.

She Made Two Attempts After Her Husband's Suicide.

The guests of the St. George Hotel, in Brooklyn, had not recovered this morning from the high state of excitement into which they were thrown by the suicide of Samuel C. Cook, early last evening, followed by attempts by Mrs. Cook to kill herself.

It was learned this morning that Mrs. Cook had tried to get hold of the pistol her husband had used. When this attempt failed, she wanted to jump from the seventh-story window.

Mrs. Cook was still very nervous this morning. A trained nurse was at her bedside, and she was again at an attempt to do herself violence.

The causes which led to Cook's suicide have not yet been ascertained. His father, a Chief Inspector of the New York City Police, was a man of considerable means, and was a close friend to a man, a placard on the coat read:

"THE MAN THAT KILLED HARRISON—REMEMBERED."

There was considerable noise and excitement at the corner as the boys gathered. They had prepared the effigy for the funeral, and were dancing in the street with a rope attached. No police were present.

Organized labor has determined to build a monument to the memory of Mayor Harrison. It has not yet been decided whether the monument shall be placed on the corner of Broadway and Third avenue, or in the park.

The initial step in the direction of the erection of a monument was taken yesterday afternoon at a meeting of prominent members of the Trade and Labor Assembly and the Building Trades Council.

Mayor Harrison's body was today re-interred to the City Hall, where it lies in state. Fully three hundred people gathered about the building as the hearse came up.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Before the police could disperse them, a crowd of twenty or thirty boys had been gathered in the city hall last night. They gathered at the corner of Hill and Wells streets, and drew up on a tree an object bearing a close resemblance to a man. A placard on the coat read:

"THE MAN THAT KILLED HARRISON—REMEMBERED."

THE BILL GOES OVER.

Efforts at Immediate Consideration Fail in the House.

Repealers Could Not Overcome Mr. Bland's Objections.

The Measure Promptly Transmitted from the Senate To-Day.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—There was no delay in transmitting the Silver Purchase Repeal bill, as passed by the Senate, back to the House for that body's concurrence in the one simple amendment.

At 12:50 to-day Secretary of the Senate Cox appeared at the main door of the House with the long-looked-for bill and amendment in his hand. Mr. Oates (Dem., Ala.) was on the floor at the time, and was interrupted by the Speaker, who said: "The gentleman from Alabama will suspend while the House receives a message from the Senate."

Instantly there was great silence throughout the chamber, and Assistant Doorkeeper Smith's voice was perfectly audible to its full extent as he introduced the Secretary.

The formal acceptance of the bill and message followed, and then the House resumed its routine business.

The only special feature that marked the incident was the hand-clapping with which Representatives Fitch, Hendricks and Dumphy, of New York, received Secretary Cox's official announcement of repeal's success in the Upper Chamber.

The silver men laughed derisively. Mr. Bland had said that he would not allow the unanimous consent by virtue of which alone the bill could be considered to-day.

However, Mr. Livingston, of Georgia, intends asking unanimous consent to consider the Silver bill to-day and to take a vote to-night on the repeal. Speaker Crisp has promised to recognize him.

Silver men have been laboring with Mr. Bland to get his consent to this arrangement. Later—Mr. Bland was not persuaded. The Repeal bill goes over till to-morrow.

THE BRIDGE BILL TAKEN UP.

Senate Voted Down Mr. McPherson's Objection.
